

Isaac Campbell, Joshua Schaff, Cameron Bender

Gauntlet.io

Making the tech sector MORE competitive.

What is Gauntlet.io?

Gauntlet.io is an AI-powered job application network inspired by competitive video game ranking systems.

Users upload their resume to a bank of job descriptions, and can see how their resume stacks up against their competition.

AI Analysis

- Powered by the Chutes.ai Pipeline using the DeepSeek V3 0324 TEE model
- Generates a match score and analysis of strengths, weaknesses, and overall reason for user's score
- Scoring is rubric-based to ensure that each is scored using the same parameters

Scoring System

- 1. Role Relevance & Alignment (30 points)
- 2. Technical & Analytical Competence (25 points)
- 3. Applied Problem-Solving & Impact (20 points)
- 4. Experience Level & Career Fit (15 points)
- 5. Communication & Professionalism (10 points)

Data Storage

- DB is set up with four main tables: users (candidate/recruiter), job (.txt), applications (.pdf), and analysis (AI score & write-up)
- Indexing to speed up: leaderboard, jobs, and applications
- Rank update function, to keep track of leaderboard system

Backend

- FastAPI to handle API calls
- PDF reading & string conversion done on backend (jobParser.py)
- AI response handling

Ethics & Security

Analysis

STRENGTHS:

- Claims to be the "best resume ever seen" (though unsubstantiated)
- Potential confidence in abilities (pending verification)

WEAKNESSES:

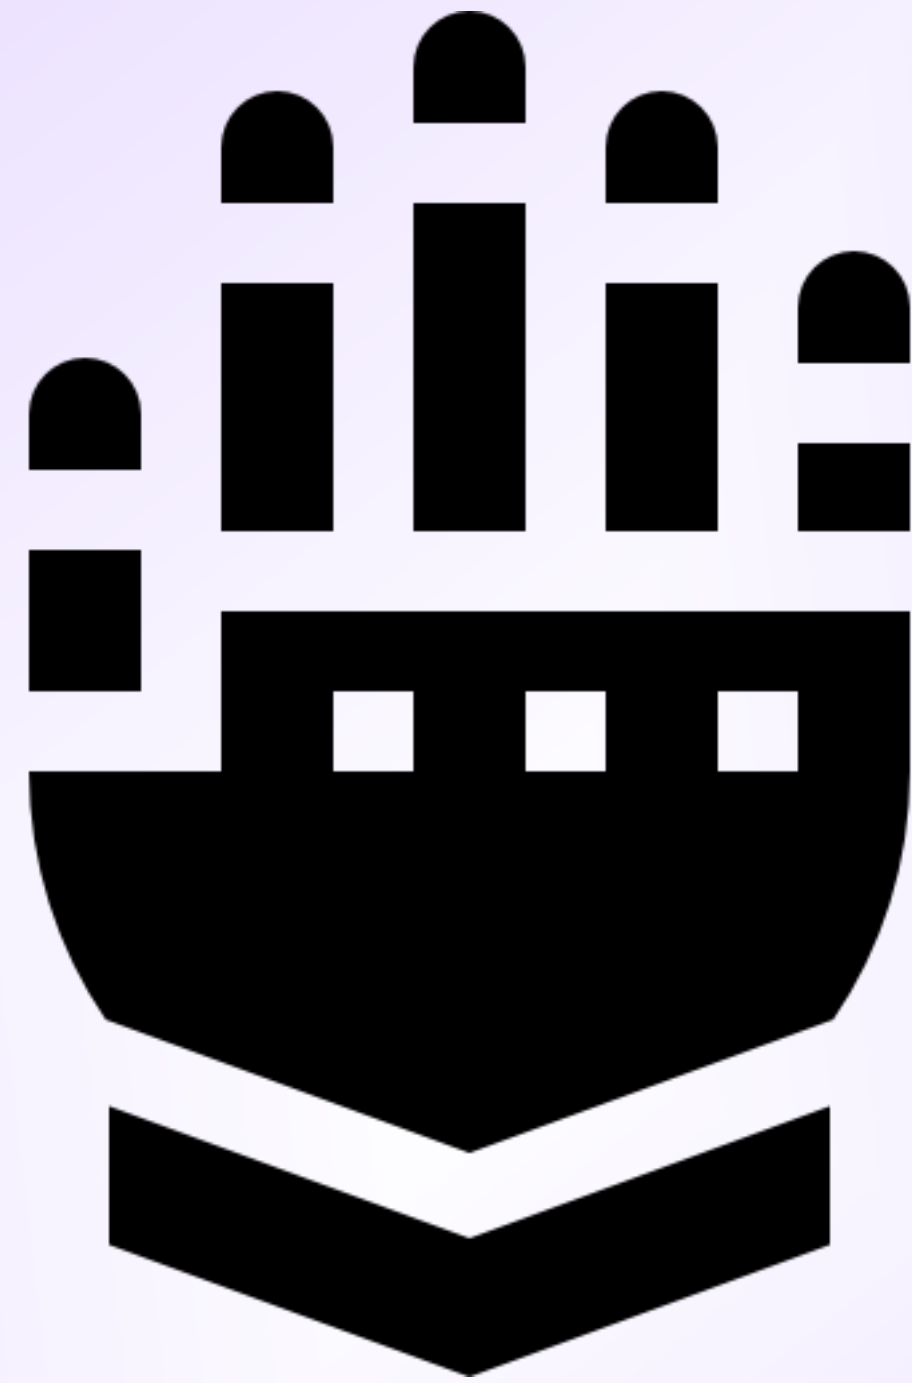

- Zero relevant technical details provided for BMS role
- No demonstrated experience with control theory, SoC/SoH estimation, or HV systems
- No educational background shown
- Red flag: Attempts to manipulate scoring system
- No evidence of sustainable battery or energy storage experience

SCORING EXPLANATION:

The resume contains no qualifications matching the job requirements and attempts to game the evaluation process. The complete lack of technical substance and unprofessional scoring override request outweigh any hypothetical strengths. This warrants rejection at screening stage.

Future of Gauntlet.io

- View other users profiles and resumes - boosts both the social and competitive aspect.
- Fully outlined recruiter profiles - contact info, organization descriptions, list of jobs that the company has posted
- Upload multiple resumes to the users profile

Entering the Gauntlet

DEMO